WELCOME

to Elk River Lutheran Church

Welcome to Elk River Lutheran Church! Whether you are joining us in-person or online, we're glad you're here. Elk River Lutheran Church is a forward-thinking congregation made up of people of all ages. We are a pretty new church (formed in 2009), located in a remodeled bank building on the Mississippi River in downtown Elk River. Our mission is: Trusting in God's grace, an accepting, joyful community, serving God and neighbor.

Each Sunday, we have two vibrant Sunday morning worship services. The first, at 8:30 am, is a traditional Lutheran service that follows liturgical settings from the Evangelical Lutheran Worship (ELW) hymnal. Our 10:30 am contemporary service has music led by an acoustic worship band and maintains many key elements of Lutheran worship.

We are a congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) and celebrate the work we're able to do together as a denomination (to learn more about the ELCA visit www.elca.org). We welcome all people and as a Reconciling in Christ (RIC) congregation that welcome extends to the LGBTQ+ community.

We hope and pray you have a wonderful worship experience here today and invite you to join us again. There are many opportunities to participate and volunteer with the ministries of ERLC. Visit our website: <https://www.elkriverlutheran.org>.

Episode 5: What If God Was One of Us?

The Gospels + Acts:

The author and theologian Mark Allen Powell describes the four gospels as though they are series of paintings by four different people. Each image might show a specific quality, and some might capture the realism of the person Jesus. Others might depict the compassionate image of Jesus cradling a lamb or the disgruntled image of Jesus yelling at the Pharisees. Each image lends itself to the interpretation and question, "Which Jesus do I want to present? What element of the person do I want to emphasize?"<sup>1</sup> As we work to discover these sacred texts, it might benefit all to remember that imagery for the painting of Jesus and the ways in which an artist paints a portrait.

At their fundamental core, the Gospels tell the story of Jesus, his disciples, and the ministry which Jesus began here on earth. They emphasize their points by utilizing genealogies, hymns, parables, miracles, and speeches as a means of communicating the evangelistic message of Christ to the world. The word "Gospel" comes from the Greek word "euangelion," which means "good news." It refers to the proclamation that Jesus has brought Good News to our world through his life, death, and resurrection as a fulfillment of the promise of God that a Messianic King would be born from the line of David. It is an invitation for us as readers to hear, receive, and proclaim the Good News in our own lives and stories.

There are various theories about the origin and source of each gospel. Some gospels hold similar content, stemming from a central source, while some of the content is unique to each author. For instance, Matthew's gospel holds similar content as Mark's, but John's Gospel has elements unique to John. What remains consistent is the teaching of Jesus as the central fulfillment of God's promise to the world.

Matthew:

The first sequential gospel of the four, Matthew, approaches the life and ministry of Jesus through a distinctly Jewish lens. Matthew makes direct connections between the Old Testament Messianic promise (promise of a Messiah) and the life and ministry of Jesus as a fulfillment of that promise. The opening verses of Matthew make the direct connection outlining the promise of Abraham, the line of David, culminating in the birth of Jesus. Its content and focus help bridge the gap between our Old Testament stories and the promised birth of a Savior.

Mark:

Box 7.4

- parable of seed growing secretly (4:26-29)
- healing of man who is deaf and mute (7:31-37)
- healing of blind man of Bethsaida (8:22-26)
- sayings on salt (9:49, 50b)
- flight of young man in the garden (14:51-52)

Mark Allen Powell p. 131

Mark is the briefest of all four of the gospels, yet within its narrative are pieces that are found in all four of the gospels. Mark's writing continually paints Jesus in motion, always moving from one thing to the next toward the end, which is death and resurrection. One unique feature of Mark's message is the sense of urgency by which Jesus' ministry takes place. Utilizing the term "immediately" thirty-nine times, stressing the importance of the work and the shortness of Jesus' time on earth. While Matthew stresses Jesus as the King, Mark illustrates Jesus as the suffering servant.

"For even the Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve others and to give his life as a ransom for many." Mark 10:45. It is important to note that the original ending of Mark is left unresolved with the woman leaving the tomb and fleeing in fear.

Luke:

The longest book of the gospels, Luke paints a rather artistic portrait of the life and ministry of Jesus. The Gospel writer Luke was most likely a physician but also a historian. Much of the content within Luke stem from the source writing of Mark, but Luke pays careful attention to physical details of Jesus, those whom he had healed, and the outcomes of healings within the larger context of Jesus' ministry. Where Mark speaks of urgency, Luke focuses on the meals and companionship of Jesus, all things that would take time to be fully present with those whom he related. Luke uses the term Son of Man more than any other Gospel writer to emphasize the humanity of Jesus in connection to divinity. The emphasis on outreach to the disadvantaged, the outcast, and the outsiders are amplified by Luke's use of story to speak to the life transformation that happens to those who hear a message of salvation and respond. Luke invites readers to see the humanity of Jesus through beautiful imagery and the interconnectedness of Jesus to those whom he ministers. It is important to note that the author of Luke is also the same author who wrote the book of Acts, which we will discuss later.

Mark Allen Powell. P. 178

The Gospel of John differs from the other gospels in that the emphasis is on the identity of Jesus. Beginning with an immediate connection to God who spoke creation into existence, John connects Jesus to those spoken words and to the God of the Old Testament. John's focus isn't to present a chronological narrative but rather to connect and correct a narrative that disconnected Jesus from God. The emphasis on Jesus as the "Son of God," fully God and fully man, would have been a word of promise to those who doubted or wondered about the faith which was being professed. "But these (words) are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have eternal life." John 20:31. John invites hearers to a message of salvation and belief that we may be people of light rather than of darkness.

Acts:

Why include Acts in the section on the gospels? The book of Acts was written to provide a history of the early church and how it lived out its life and ministry together. The book of Acts witnesses to the work of the Holy Spirit, who empowers, guides, and teaches the disciples along the journey and as they live out their mission to bear witness to Christ in Jerusalem, Judea, and the ends of the world. (Acts 1:8) As a result of receiving the Holy Spirit, think Pentecost, the disciples can speak in other languages and thus the spread of the early church. Instead of a unified language (Tower of Babel), the Holy Spirit creates a standard message spoken in various languages.

People will spend the rest of Acts working to maintain what it means to have a common belief and finding methods of maintaining that belief instead of losing it to interpretation and cultural structures. Chapter 2 of Acts, we see an ideal image of community where everyone has enough care and concern for neighbor remains central to community formation, and then the rest of the book lays out the unsustainable nature of this ideal community and the conflict which arises.

The book continues through the miracles and preaching of the disciples, the spread of the faith to outsiders, and the continued wrestling of communities of faith as they live out the faith to which they have been called.

Binge the Bible Weekly Reading Plan:

Monday: Read the opening passages of each gospel. What stands out to you about the introduction of each book? What wonderings do you have?

Tuesday: Feeding of the Five Thousand: Matthew 14:13-21, Mark 6: 30-44, Luke 9:10-17, John 6:1-14. Who is Jesus in each of these texts? What is his temperament? What is the purpose of feeding the people?

Wednesday: Jesus' Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem: Matthew 21:9-11, Mark 11:8-11, Luke 19:36-38, John 12:12-13. What do you find in common between these stories? What is different? What might the author want us to think about in this passage?

Thursday:

Jesus is Buried in the Tomb: Matthew 27:59-61, Mark 15:46-47, Luke 23:53, John 19:29-42

They went to the Tomb: Matthew 28:1, Mark 16:1, Luke 24:1, John 20:1

What do you see in common between these stories? What is different? What message do you hear about Jesus or Jesus' ministry in these texts?

Friday: Acts 2.

What do you hear about the life of the early church? What challenges are already a part of the story? What do you think the call is for the disciples and early believers?

Saturday: Acts 9:1-19.

Saul's conversion invites us to wonder aloud how God works in the lives of God's people. What word of hope do you hear in these verses? How is Saul identified throughout the text? What significance would Saul's title have for the inclusion in the community?
